the fortunes of both ministry and opposition is impending this week, but the best informed observers are vague and uncertain in their forecasts.

The majorities for the government in the House of Commons and against it in the House of Lords on the motion of censure will be large but inconclusive, Mr. Asquith will not have a since the rejection of the home rule bill in 1892.

Mr. Balfour may deny that ne has declined to attempt the formation of an alternative government, and Mr. Asquith is likely to admit, under pressure of close questioning, that there was an understanding with the King last November respecting guarantees, and that it was based upon the result of the elections at the end of the year.

Both the prime minister's request for guarantees and the King's acquiescence will be justified by the ministerialists by the decision of the country when the Parliament bill was referred to it, and the responsibility for revealing the confidential relations between crown and premier will lie with the leaders of the opposition.

Reasons Will Not Convince.

The Unionists are not likely to gain anything from the debate, in which Mr. Asquith can sum up the argument of constitutional practice with Apparently the passage of the bill cannot be guaranteed by Lord Lansdowne nor calculated with precision by Lord Morley. The creation of fifty or a hundred peers will release abstainers from their piedges and reinforce Lord Halsbury's fighting force so strongly that the measure will be lost.

TOWN IS FLOODED

Toledo. August 6.—Sidney, a villago near here, was visited by a cloudburst early to-day. Starrett Creek and the Miami and Erie Canal overflowed their banks and flooded the south-eastern part of the village. Cellara were filled and water was a foot deep on the arst floor of some houses. In several of the streets water stood from one to three feet deep. The Big Four Railroad tracks for half a mile west of Sidney were under two to three feet of water, these floating over the tracks. An eastbound passenger train ran into the flood and was held up for several hours,

LIQUOR FIGHT IS ON

Legislature Has But Eight Days in Which to Settle Question.
Atlanta, Ga., August & With but eight working days remaining of the present session, the Georgia Legislature is facing the most important liquor fight since the adoption of State-wide prohibition in 1907. Night sessions probably will be adopted early in the week.

sessions probably will be adopted early in the week.

Supporters of the Tippins anti-nearbeer measure are confident that the bill will reach its final hearing Mon-day, and it is expected that a bitter fight will follow. The bill prohibits the handling of any beverage containing more than one-half of 1 percent of alcohol. The anti-prohibition-ists are preparing to throw their forces to the support of a bill providing for licensed beer saloons and "package houses." The temperance forces will resist it to the last ditch.

It is generally affinited that the Tippins bill probably will be passed by the House, but only after a limited liquor system and the reference of the issue to the people has been voted down.
